

THE
DON MARQUIS
DOUBLE SCOTCH AND PROHIBITION SOCIETY

“I’ve conquered that goddamn willpower of mine. Give me a double scotch!”

BYLAWS

- No. 1. The Society shall be known as the Don Marquis Double Scotch and Prohibition Society, celebrating the legacy of that beloved New York newspaper columnist and humor writer (1878-1937) who helped America endure Prohibition with a smile—and a sip.
- No. 2. The Society’s motto shall be the words of Don Marquis, who once, after a prolonged period of abstinence, boldly declared: “I’ve conquered that goddamn willpower of mine. Give me a double scotch!”
- No. 3. The Society shall have no moral purpose. It may, however, have a moral porpoise.
- No. 4. Membership dues shall be equal to the going rate for a double scotch, payable by each member to his or her bar tab.
- No. 5. Members of the Salvation Army, the Women’s Christian Temperance Union and other sober-minded individuals are welcome to join the Society. They shall be regarded with courtesy and charity, if not bewilderment.
- No. 6. Members are encouraged to organize local chapters and report on local activities. In New York, the Society’s clubhouse shall be the bar at Keens Steakhouse, one of Don’s favorite haunts.
- No. 7. Meetings of the Society shall be convened whenever it suits the purposes (and porpoises) of any member, including appropriate ceremonies to mark the Society’s High Holy Days:
- March 29—ArchyFest! First appearance of Archy in The Sun Dial (1916).
  - July 29—Don’s birthday! (1878).
  - December 5—Repeal Day! End of Prohibition (1933).
- No. 8. Meetings of the Society shall include toasts to the following cherished friends. Members who fail to finish the prescribed toasts shall start again at the beginning until the task is completed.
